Reduce Muscularskeletal Disorder (MSD) Claims

Forty percent ($20B) of occupational injuries in the US are MSD related and workers' compensation expenses will triple by 2030. Alliant TotalComp is designed to specifically mitigate these risks.

The TotalComp proprietary methodology doesn't wait for injuries to occur. It uses proven preventive techniques to identify and remove risk factors contributing to MSDs.

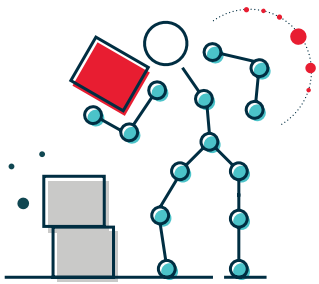

TotalComp Overview

Musculoskeletal Disorders (MSD) includes soft tissue injuries such as sprains, strains, tears, and carpal tunnel syndrome. Alliant is proud to offer this one-of-a-kind workers compensation solution that prevents many of the challenges MSD brings to business.

TotalComp's integrated platform of advanced technologies, a dedicated team of experts and real-time analytics are the major reasons it's so successful. There is no other program in the market today that prioritizes pre-injury solutions.

TotalComp clients have reduced their MSD claims by 35% over 12 months through its:

- Revolutionary wearable sensor technology: Using body sensors, objective ergonomic tools, and informal observation, the TotalComp team tracks how individuals move in real-work situations. Data collected can be used to enforce proper methods and movements to prevent MSD injuries.
- Industrial sports medicine program: This is an early symptom intervention program integrated at the worksite to address initial aches and pains of the workforce. Sports medicine professionals, and specialists in ergonomics and musculoskeletal injury prevention, work with your employees to help keep them healthy.
- TotalComp University: Online and in-person training teaches best movement practices to the workforce. The program's success is monitored in real-time through In-house analytics with an online dashboard for easy review.
- Innovation and development: The TotalComp team continually works with research and development teams focused on new ways to prevent soft tissue injury. This commitment to innovation broadens our ability to bring you the latest technologies in pre-injury solutions.

Advantages of TotalComp

Reduced Costs

TotalComp typically reduces MSD claims by 35% over 12 months which in turn can significantly lower your overall workers compensation expenditures.

Less Administrative Hassle

A workforce with less injury means the administrative hassles associated with workers' compensation are significantly reduced. This includes claims administration, modified duty paperwork and recruiting for replacement employees.

Improved Productivity & Workflow

Our preventive approach helps keep employees healthy and on the job. Work can continue as planned and you are less likely to have sudden gaps in skills important to your company.

The Alliant Advantage

Proprietary process and technology

There is nothing like TotalComp in the market today. Its unique focus on prevention using proprietary technology, analysis and training gets such strong results, every TotalComp client who has signed on continues to use the program today.

Advanced claims management

Should an injury occur, our dedicated claims advocates will monitor your claims and make the necessary adjustments to ensure milestones are met on time and your employees get healthy, and back to work, quickly. Monthly loss analysis reports with valuable statistical information break down your claims by location, department, length of service, time of injury, type of injury, and body type.
